Middle School and Double Digits!!

So hard to believe this year that David not only turned 10 but also started middle school! We celebrated his 10th birthday with a Key Lime Cove birthday party, and our annual trip to Chucke Cheese. He loves Math class and is doing really good. He also started playing the saxophone and had two concerts.

Seven years old and in Second Grade

Connor turned seven this year and we celebrated with a Key Lime Cove birthday party and Chucke Cheese. Hard to believe he graduated from the primary school and moved up to the elementary school. He is excelling in all the subjects at school, and is loved by all his friends.

Baseball Boys and Cubs win the World Series

The boys played baseball this summer on the same team and their skills are starting to show. They had a fun time and both are wanting to play again next year, though they will be on different teams as David will move up to the big league. Also with baseball we saw the Chicago Cubs win the world series. Connor stayed awake for all the world series games, and was awake the night they won. He was so excited to watch them win and so proud of his Chicago Cubs. Daddy was also shocked they had won after 108 years of having no title, the curse of the goat is broken!

Football Number 49

In the beginning of the year, Connor expressed an interest in football. We signed him up for flag football in the spring and he LOVED it! I had already signed him up for flag football for the fall, but he had his heart set on tackle football, so we let him try it and he did great! He loves all sports and loved having his own jersey with his name on it. He had wanted Dad's number, but that wasn't available and decided on #49. Although his team only won one game this year, he had a lot of fun playing and can't wait to play again next year.

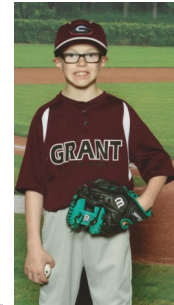

Mom Got a Degree!

This fall I went back to school, to finish my classes for nursing so once accepted into the program, I can concentrate strictly on nursing classes. While taking classes this semester, I found out one of the classes would allow me to finally get a degree in paralegal studies which I began pursuing five years ago. With grades being posted last week, I found out that I will in fact be getting a degree in Paralegal Studies, now I will always have something to fall back on and it only took five years!

David's Update

David still loves playing with Lego's and school buses but will still play garbage trucks and fire trucks with Connor. He started Soccer this fall and did really good at it. A few weeks ago he told us he had joined the wrestling team, he did so completely on his own without us saying anything. He is also doing great at school and was elected to student council and the yearbook staff. We are so proud of him!

Connor's Update

Connor has had a big year as well. He played baseball in the spring but also decided he wanted to try football. He is a big sports oriented kid and still has a sweet kind heart. He is always worrying about his friends and try's to make sure everyone is happy. He also started taking more risks and is jumping into the pool on his own, without me having to catch him. He is playing basketball this winter and is still doing Karate.
